Code of Successful Workers

In the February American Magazine, Ray Stannard Baker gives the following code of successful work, including the nine business commandments adopted for boys and girls:

- I will respect all useful work, and be courteous to the workers.
 - I will know my work, and have ambition to do it well.
 - I will take the initiative, and develop executive ability.
 - I will be industrious and willing.
 - I will be honest and truthful.
 - I will educate myself into strength of character.
 - I will be faithful to my work.
 - I will be loyal.
 - I will be a gentleman—a lady.
- The world does not owe me a living, but I am proud to make a good living for myself.

Prizes For Pupils

Pupils attending the California high schools and the 7th and 8th grades of the grammar schools will be given an opportunity this year to win substantial cash prizes for the best suggestion for street car advertising.

Two prizes of $25. each will be given; two of $10. each, and two of $5. each.

The prizes will be given for the best street-car advertisements in favor of voting California "dry", at the coming election. The prizes are offered by the California Campaign Federation. The following rules govern the contest:

(1) The contest is confined to pupils of the high schools and of the 7th and 8th grades of the grammar schools.

(2) The prize is given for the most effective statement, not to exceed 40 words, in support of the amendments to make California "dry". The fact should be kept in mind, however, that the fewer the words used the better. This consideration will be a large factor in the decision of the judges. 20 words are better than 40, and 10 words better than 20.

(3) Independent contests will be carried on in the Southern and the Northern Divisions of the State.

(4) Three prizes will be offered in each Division, namely, a first prize of $25., a second prize of $10. and a third prize of $5.

(5) The work will be carried on in the Southern Division through the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the South, and in the Northern Division through the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the North.

(6) The contest closes on May 15, next.

(7) The contest will be decided in each Division by a committee of five, two members of which shall be appointed by the Women's Christian Temperance Union of that Division, two by the District Superintendent of the California Campaign Federation for that Division and the fifth to be named by the four committeemen thus appointed.

It is hoped that as many pupils as possible will participate in the contest. For further information, address Mrs. Mae Whitman, Pres. W. C. T. U.

"500" Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ainsley delightfully entertained a second company of friends, Monday evening. The house was charmingly decorated with jars of Japanese quince and greenery.

The table decorations, favors and prizes were all suggestive of the good St. Patrick, and the Emerald Isle. In a contest, drawing pigs with the left hand, H. W. Higbie produced the most life-like "beastie," and carried home his prototype, in the form of a candy box.

At "500," which was played part of the evening, Mrs. C. C. Olds and Geo. Robson carried off the honors.

Following refreshments, in which "green" was a prominent color, music was enjoyed. Many old and new Irish songs and ditties were sung or played on the Victor. Out of town guests were Mrs. J. H. Coombs of Ceres, and Miss Emmelyn Beattie of San Jose.

Home and School Club

Miss Sawyer's room was full to overflowing Tuesday with ladies who had come to hear Prof. Osenbaugh's talk and enjoy the other good things of the meeting.

The program included two numbers from Miss Clark's room, a solo by Merlid Powell and a Mother Goose playlet.

Prof. Osenbaugh gave a very impressive talk on "Preparedness," not national, but moral. He emphasized the responsibility of parents and home influences in this matter. The talk was so full of truth and so impressive that everyone was sorry it was so brief.

The president, Mrs. Andrew Johnson, gave a very interesting report of the all day meeting in San Jose, when the Council of Mothers was organized into a district to be known probably as the Sixth District.

The contest for attendance was won by the Fifth Grade. It is a matter of great satisfaction to those interested in the welfare of the Club to see so many in attendance as have been present at most of the meetings during this school year.

The Moreland Farmers Union Have Program

On Friday evening March 10, at the Moreland hall on the corner of Saratoga avenue and Payne avenue a program and dance will be given by the Moreland Farmers' union. Breith's orchestra of Santa Clara will furnish the music and a short and snappy program will be rendered by the best talent obtainable in the valley. Ample refreshments are promised by the ladies. Tickets 50c a couple.

SURELY "PUT FOOT IN IT"

Dog, Imprisoned in Bakery, Did Some Damage In His Desire to Be Released.

In Portland, Ore., there is a bakery window that usually contains a tempting array of cakes. Sponge cake, pound cake, lady fingers, puffs and, indeed, a dozen other kinds of sweetbread, served to make the mouths of the children fairly water when they go past the big window. The other day a gentleman went into the bakery to leave an order, and with him went his dog—a good-sized animal, of a frisky disposition. When that gentleman came out he shut the door behind him, forgetting that he had left his four-footed friend and follower inside the bakery.

As for the dog, he was in a great way. Seeing the door closed against him, he got into a state of mind ordinarily described as "crazy." In his eagerness to keep track of his master, he looked around for a place of exit. Now, one of the sashes in the big show window aforementioned was raised an inch or so, and the dog therefore made a dash for the window. His first leap took him on top of a fine, frosted wedding cake, and his paws sank into it just as a boy's boots break through a crust of snow.

Finding himself still in a trap, and being unable to break the plate glass, the dog began to hop around, with his forepaws against the panes and his hindfeet down among the precious cakes. The more the people both without and within shouted, the more the dog danced, and the more the rich and highly-ornamented products of the oven suffered. Talk about "putting his foot in it"—he put his foot through a cake at every jump. At the height of the excitement the baker, who had been away, entered. The dog saw the door fly open, and, quitting the window at a bound, he darted away. Nothing more was seen of the animal, who probably did not know what havoc he had made in the unfortunate baker's window.

Work and Poverty.

If the time ever comes when there is no longer poverty in the world there will be a wonderful freedom for the higher qualities of the human race. Men will then work, not because they are driven by the competitive spirit, but from a higher impulse, love of work itself.

The chances are that if a man like Dickens had been free to work in this way he would have done not more work, perhaps even less, but work of finer and higher polish. For Dickens, as an artist, suffered till the end from poverty. If he had had more advantages in early youth his talents would have been better trained. He would have had more taste and more balance. He would have striven less for popular and transient effect than for the truth, for what was permanent and of universal appeal.

To Be Godfather to Many.

Emperor William is probably godfather to more boys than any other person on earth, but he is so well able to stand up under the strain that he has issued an order that presently will increase the number of his proteges.

The rule formerly has been that he would assume the responsibility of being godfather to a seventh son, born to any family, provided the boy was seventh boy by one and the same marriage. Under this ruling many seventh sons have had to do without the honor, because the mother had been twice married.

The emperor now has modified the rule and announced that he will become godfather to any seventh son, regardless of the number of marriages the mother has contracted, provided all seven boys are living.

Joy for One at Least.

A minister, meeting a parishioner of his who had been quite recently married and about whose domestic happiness terrible stories were rife, saluted him, and said:

"Well, John, and how is all going on?"

"Oh, happily enough!" returns John. "I'm glad to hear it. You know there were rumors of rows or—"

"Rows," says John. "Oh, yes, there are plenty of rows; whenever she sees me she catches the first thing to hand, a dish or anything, and fires it at me. If she hits me she's happy; if she doesn't, I am! Oh, we're getting on fine!"—Tit-Bits.

Scattered Wealth on Street.

During a severe windstorm which recently centered its force upon a small Oklahoma town, several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry displayed in a shop window was blown into the street when the front of the store was demolished. A large number of rings and unset stones, as well as ornaments, were scattered about. Because of the danger of being struck by flying debris, the employees of the store were unable to attempt the recovery of the stock until the storm subsided.—Popular Mo

The Charms of Burma

LIKE Kipling's Cockney soldier, everyone who visits Burma is fascinated by it and longs to return, for though to some extent it has been invaded by Occidental civilization, in the main it is yet unspoiled. Then, too, one of its charms is the mingling of modern bustle and Oriental calm. Such cities as Mandalay and Rangoon are full of these incongruous contrasts, writes Helen Barrett Montgomery in the Missionary Review of the World; impressions of golden pagodas, yellow-robed ascetics, flower-garlanded shrines, silk-skirted men, mingle with the remembrance of broad, paved streets, street cars, business blocks, newspapers, clubhouses, parks, department stores and railway stations.

The mingling of races makes Burma a "melting-pot" in miniature. Rangoon has its Chinese quarters, its Tamil and Telugu streets, its motley throng of Europeans from many lands added to its native Burmese, Karen, Talian, Shan and other races. In fact, more than half of the population of Rangoon are foreign born. The coming of these diverse races to trade and to live is producing profound changes in Burmese life.

The Burman is the aristocrat of the land. It is his country, his language, his Buddhist faith that gives Burma its characteristics and its charm. Out of the twelve million inhabitants of Burma, ten million are Burmese. The Burmese is one of the proudest, most indolent and self-satisfied races on earth. The rude jostle of these other peoples who are elbowing their way into his country, competing with him in business, acquiring his land, even questioning the supremacy of his religion, is giving a harsh jolt to many ideas that have held placid sway in the Burmese mind. The awakening is painful, but part of the stern kindness of Providence to a people grown inert through isolation.

The natural sunniness of the Burmese temperament is shown by the fact that this most pessimistic of all religions has not been able to destroy the note of merriment and practical good cheer that one feels in Burma. There is no such look of sadness and mystery on the faces of the crowd that one sees in India, but rather a certain sleekness and satisfaction with the good things of life.

We were impressed, as all travelers are, by the contrast in the position of women in Burma with that of Indian women. Women go and come freely in the street, as they do with us. They are not married so young. They engage in business, have property rights, and seem altogether the

KACHIN WOMEN OF BURMA

They have achieved a picturesque and comfortable costume, too, so similar to that of men that at first glance there is little difference. Both sexes wear the straight, narrow skirts of gay-colored silk to be sure, but the man's skirt, brought snugly around the hips, has its fullness so tucked in at the waist as to cascade in a lordly ripple down the front. It is an amusing sight to see a youngster of six trying to wear his tiny skirt so that it projects in front at the very angle affected by his dandified young uncle. The woman's skirt, equally narrow and equally bright, is tucked firmly about the waist with the fullness folded over so as to lie in a flat plait at the left side.

Below these gay skirts twinkle bare feet, the skin about the color of warm old ivory. Above them the body is covered by a short jacket of white cotton. The woman adds a thin floating scarf and a posy in her hair. A crowd of Burmese men and women is quite the brightest and most engaging color-fest of the Orient.

In the beautiful girls' boarding school in Rangoon, called Kemendine, we attended an annual gymnastic drill given by the pupils. Not only was the technical skill remarkable, but the esthetic effects made one wish that American colleges could introduce Burmese gymnastic suits. One drill, with hoops of green garlanded with roses, was done by demure maidens whose skirts were of pale blue and their scarfs of rosy tissue floating over their white jackets. The bare feet kept time to the most intricate and prolonged evolutions, and the bright faces crowned by black hair, flower-decked, were themselves flowerlike in their young beauty.

His Experience.

Meeks—Well, let us come to an agreement of some kind and put it in black and white. Talk is cheap, you know.

Weeks—Yes, and ink is often expensive.

Meeks—What do you mean?

Weeks—I let a drop of it scatter over the back of a friend's note three years ago and I'm still making payments on it.

GRAMMAR IN DECAY

MODERN CARELESSNESS OF DISTINCTION IS CRITICIZED.

Vocabulary Has Become the Despair of Dictionary Makers, But the Proper Usage of Words Is Little Considered.

Whether our speech is to serve us as a mitten or as a glove depends on the pains we are willing to take with distinctions like those in "should" and "would," "what" and "that," "the boy's" and "of the boy," a writer in the Boston Herald observes. For our thought, both in seeing things and in mulling them over, is far subtler and more finely shaded than the corresponding string of words that we address to our friends; in such expression as we can reach, we depend on the trim distinction of our grammar as directly as the typist on the distinctions of her keyboard or the wood carver on the differences of his gouges. To lose from good usage even one well-based grammatical distinction is to lessen by just that amount our means of matching our thoughts with our words.

Unhappily our careless use of the mother tongue is confusing forms and dropping distinction that even colloquial wording can ill spare. Our enormous vocabulary grows faster than the dictionary makers can issue appendix and new edition; but our grammar, like an aging tree, is decaying at the tips. Take for instance "would" and "should." Here in New England the distinction lingers. In the middle West and beyond "would" has hopelessly merged with its own service that of "should." The smoother phrases "I would like" and "I would be grateful" already appear in formal writing, and only the verbalist is vexed. The distinction of "who" from "that," for all the good examples in the talk of street and shop and in the common version of the Bible, is as good as gone from our modern books. In "a running fight," "by running a race," "I saw John running," "I saw John's running," how many of us can tell apart, as adjective, infinitive, participle and verbal noun, those four "runnings"? Is it any wonder that we are letting slip the good distinction between "He didn't like Tom interrupting" and "He didn't like Tom's interrupting"? A graver loss has come of our laziness with subjunctive forms. Our school children think us quaint when we say, "If he were" or "Wherever it be." Shades of Demosthenes and Cicero! What could even the orators have done had Rome and Athens dulled their stiletto-like subjunctives into blunt indicatives?

Language is the world's oldest wonder. No one really knows how it began or how it attained its structural perfection. The Greek grammar was finer than the Roman; the Sanskrit finer than the Greek. Language is the one taking argument for a prehistoric golden age. Its laws have been studied and named and marveled at by men like Grimm and Mueller and our own Whitney as if human speech had some mysterious life of its own. The least rest of us can do is to pass it to the next generation with the least possible damage from our own using.

Specter of Pauperism.

Do you know that in the United States 66 out of every 100 people that die leave no estate whatever? Do you know that out of the remaining 34 only nine leave estates larger than $5,000, and that the average of the balance of 25 is a little less than $1,300? Do you know that at the age of sixty-five, 97 out of every 100 in America are partly or wholly dependent upon relatives, friends or the public for their daily bread, for their clothing and for a roof under which to sleep? We all know that the one safeguard against pauperism by the countries of Europe has been thrift, S. W. Strauss of Chicago writes in Leslie's. France, Germany, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland have been the leaders in thrift. Do you realize that according to recent government statistics, 98 per cent of the American people are living from day to day on their wages, and that a loss of employment would mean pauperism for all but two per cent of us?

They Could Get Along.

Hank O'Day, the Old National league umpire, was working a game single-handed one afternoon, his partner having met with some accident. It was very warm, the players were unusually quarrelsome, and Hank was quite peevish.

"Hey, Hank!" yelled Heine Zimmerman from the third base coaching line, as a batsman hit a foul up against a concrete wall, and the ball was tossed back into the diamond. "Take a look at that ball, Hank! Take a look at it!"

"What for?" demanded Hank, surlily.

"Why, it may a-got cracked against 'at wall," said Heine. "We can't play with a cracked ball."

"Well, I dunno," said Hank. "We're going along pretty well with a lot of cracked ball players."

What She Thought of It.

"I saw you at the concert last night."

"Yes; me and Hiram are both so fond of music, you know."

"What did you think of Sawmore's technique?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, I didn't notice it; but I thought his fiddlin' was just grand."

City Alexander Built

ALEXANDER THE GREAT, like an erratic meteor, flashed across the drowse of civilization-weary Egypt; and, perhaps as a memorial of his dedication in the land of the Pharaohs, he left behind him the beginnings of a vigorous Greek city, Alexandria, destined to be the gateway for a flow of western rejuvenation to the worn valley, and today, with Constantinople and a few other places, one of the greatest prizes for the contesting army millions in the East, says a National Geographic society bulletin. Alexander built his city in 332 B. C. upon the ruins of an Egyptian town, Rhacotis. After more than 2,000 years Alexandria has become the life of Egypt, its largest port, one of the busiest ports on the Mediterranean and an important world-city.

The modern city is divided into two parts, one of which, inhabited by Mohammedans, is a listless tangle of Oriental narrow, crooked streets and uninviting buildings, while the other, the European quarter, is solidly built and possesses many of the essential conveniences of the American or European metropolis. It occupies a ridge of land between the Mediterranean and Lake Mareotis. The Rosetta mouth of the Nile lies more than thirty miles to the east. Cairo, the interior metropolis, lies 129 miles by rail to the southeast, and the Suez canal is more than 140 miles to the east. The city is linked by a network of railway and telegraph lines to the other towns of Egypt, and is in telephonic connection with Cairo.

Business City of Nile Valley.

Alexandria is the counting house and the commission office of the Nile valley. The British chamber of commerce has its headquarters there, and there, too, are located the head offices of many of the largest commercial organizations doing business in the near East. The value of the city's trade, in normal times, is about $240,000,000 a year. The western harbor, designed for a modern, first-rank commerce, is visited annually by 8,000 vessels. The chief articles of export are grain, cotton, beans, sugar and rice, and the business is largely in the hands of Europeans, of whom there are 50,000 in the total population of 400,000. The city is connected by cable lines with Cyprus, Malta, Crete and Port Said. One of the interesting phases of Alexandria's commerce is that it sends 80,000,000 eggs each year to London, where these products retail as fancy fresh eggs. This large yearly turnover gives Egypt an intimate relationship with the Englishman's breakfast table.

Dinocrates of Rhodes, architect and friend to the famous Macedonian, laid out Alexandria. He planned the city as an affair of right angles and sharp corners, including the whole in a parallelogram quadrisectioned by two main thoroughfares. This regularity of city-plan that Dinocrates developed was the beginning of the school of gridiron city-building, of the impersonal, strictly-business city only now waning in popularity.

Battleground of West and East.

The exotic Grecian city was a battleground from the start. The East and the West met and fought out their differences to a finish there. Greek learning and Greek philosophy found refuge in Alexandria, and there antagonized and finally blended with the philosophies of the East. Christianity and Paganism fought some of their most bitter battles there; and the Jews, the Christians, the Pantheists and the philosophers fomented many bloody riots, in which the fierce, violent, loot-hungry Alexandrian mob raged in unforgettable religious tumults. In one such tumult the surpassingly beautiful pagan priestess Hypatia was torn to pieces to glut a brutish populace.

The famous Alexandrian library was the bridge between the culture of classic Greece and the cultural needs of early Christian and Mohammedan Europe. Much of its treasures filtered through to the Moor and to the Christians through the scholarship of Rome. The library was destroyed in the war-flood which followed the rise of the religion from the desert; and the burning of the great book-treasury has been keenly deplored by scholars of each generation succeeding.

In the latter years of the eighteenth century the city was held by the French. It had sunk to the status of a small village under centuries of Mohammedan misrule, having a population of less than 4,000. Under Mohammed Ali, the wise and cunning Albanian, it regained much of its prosperity. English control of the city's as well as Egypt's welfare dates from 1882, since which date a new city has been developed and one that bears a greater degree of relationship to the West than to the East.

LAND BLESSED BY NATURE

Inhabitants of Small Italian Fishing Village Are Among the Fortunate of the Earth.

One of the oddest and quaintest little independent states that ever existed in Europe—the tiny Republic of Noli, founded before Rome and maintaining its liberty for many centuries until Napoleon swept away its privileges—is today merely a fishing village near Genoa, but it is full of reminders of its former greatness, and affords a wonderful glimpse of medieval times. Destroyed by the Carthaginians in 217 B. C., and who knows now often by subsequent marauders, there seemed no limit to her powers of recovery. This quaint little fishing village maintained itself as a sovereign state for centuries, took a prominent part in the quarrels of Guelphs and Ghibellines, sent doughty warriors to the Crusades, commanded the interest of emperors and popes, and only succumbed at last to the armies of Napoleon. Dante clambered hither over terrible hills on hands and knees, and revenged himself by consigning Noli to his "Purgatory." Everybody is rich in this poor man's paradise, says the Wide World Magazine. During the anchovy months it is not rare for the 120 boats to earn £800 pounds in a night, or £15,000 in a season. Through fish alone a man earns far more than a clerk, besides which he has no "appearances" to keep up. Under these happy conditions he soon acquires lands and houses, which afford a steady revenue while he sleeps or fishes. The earth here has only to be scratched in order to bring forth wealth, so rich is the soil and so abundant the water.

Ingersoll's Tribute to Women.

Ingersoll paid the following tribute to women in his lecture on Shakespeare: "In those days little attention was given to the biographies of women. They were born, married, had children and died. No matter how celebrated their sons became, the mothers were forgotten. In old times, when a man achieved distinction, great pains were taken to find out about his father and grandfather, the idea being that genius is inherited from the father's side. The truth is that all great men have had great mothers."

"Now."

"Now," is a constant syllable ticking from the clock of time. "Now" is the watchword of the wise. "Now" is on the banner of the prudent. Let us keep this little word always in our mind; and whenever anything presents itself to us in the shape of work, whether mental or physical, we should do it with all our might, remembering that "now" is the only time for us. It is, indeed, a sorry way to get through the world by putting off till tomorrow, saying, "Then" I will do it. No! this will never answer. "Now" is ours, "Then" may never be.

UNLIKE THE MODERN METHOD
Egyptian Remedies for Skin Disease
Differed Widely From Those at Present in Use.

The contrast between the very ancient and the very modern methods of treating skin diseases is well illustrated in the medical writings of the ancient Egyptians. The most modern method of treating these afflictions is by serums. A favorite prescription of the Egyptian doctors was the following: "Take the toes of a dog, ripe dates and asses' hoofs in equal parts. Boil these carefully in a pan of oil. This is an excellent remedy for skin eruptions and to make hair grow."

In these ancient writings we find the first authentic record of the use of goose grease in therapeutics, and apparently this remedy has never lost its popularity. As used by the Egyptians, however, goose grease was only one of several ingredients useful in treating certain skin diseases, particularly baldness. In this recipe five other fats were used in equal parts, mus, crocodile, snake and ibex. This remedy was to be used for a period of not more than four days. But it appears that skin diseases continued prevalent in ancient Egypt, just as they prevail there at the present time.

Wife Might Be Bad, But That's Not Saying Husband Was Good, Said the Cook on Leaving.

"Well, Mary," said the man of the house to the cook, "what is your opinion of my wife? You must have had considerable experience with other men's wives. Is she any worse or better? I have a curiosity to know whether I am any better or worse off than the average man."

"I've seen 'em worse," replied Mary, "and I've seen 'em better."

"Why are you going to leave, then? It's something I'd sometimes like to do, I confess, but can't."

"Sure, I'm going to leave because I need a change. I'm of a rovin' nature. I'm used to going about. It's in me blood. I despise all the women I work for. None of 'em knows how to treat help."

"Then you think, on the whole, that if I had to do it over again, I might be worse off?"

"It's not for the likes of me to make ye discontented with your lot. Sure, man, make the best of it. Take a holiday once in awhile and ye can stand it better. This is a sorry world at best."

"But she spends all my money, Mary—never keeps her word—has no character nor sense of justice."

"Be ye an angel of God yourself?"

"I suppose not. But, Mary, let me ask you an honest question, as man to man. If I was the boss, would you stay any longer?"

"Sure, I'd 'a' been gone already."—Life.

Question of Direction.
"When I started out in life," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "I was full of idealistic theories. I was determined that I would never take an unfair advantage of any man."

"But you had to sacrifice some of your ideals," suggested Miss Cayenne.

"Oh, yes. A man must be practical, you know. I have reached a point where I can afford to be indifferent to criticism. I began at the bottom and worked my way up."

"Perhaps. But are you sure you didn't begin at the top and slide down?"

HIS OPPORTUNITY.

Mrs. Henpeck—Do you believe in hypnotism?
Mr. Henpeck—Sure. Otherwise I'd be a happy bachelor.

Rigorous Method.
"Mrs. Dubwaite says a married woman should occasionally show her husband his place."

"I don't agree with her," said Mrs. Twobble, coldly.

"No?"

"I get the best results by impressing on Mr. Twobble that he not only has no official standing, but has very little excuse for existence."

None Whatever.
"Gaddersley just misses being a great man."

"What does that signify?"

"Nothing, I suppose."

"Of course it signifies nothing. There are no medals for the near-great."

His Experience.
"A man who has been a hand in a piano saleroom wants a position here as a film actor."

"On what ground does he ask it?"

"That he's had considerable experience in the movie business."

Safety First.
"They say people with opposite characteristics make the happiest marriages."

"Yes; that's why I'm looking for a girl with money."

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tonic because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tonic acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.—Adv.

Youth and Age and Whiskers.
As whiskers are the oldest living things, so they are the youngest. Youth and age are accentuated by whiskers. As the wind blown upon hot soup (two objects associating themselves naturally with whiskers)—as the wind blown upon hot soup cools the soup, and as the wind blown upon cold fingers warms the fingers, so is a dual role played upon young and old by the facial appurtenance. Nothing in this world looks as old as an old man wearing a patriarchal beard. And nothing in this world looks as young as a young man fondly imagining that he is wearing a "Van Dyke."

Substitute for Poker Chips.
The use of small, round oyster crackers is advisable as a substitute for poker chips, as they are easily devoured and the crime hidden, should the police raid the place. Cards alone are no indication that poker dominates therein. It requires chips to furnish that evidence. If a banker is on to his job, he will spread lightly a coating of tempting cheese upon the crackers as he issues them. This practice will, in a great measure, relieve him of the responsibility of cashing many a man at the conclusion of the game!—Zim in Cartoons Magazine.

EYE FOLLOWS SPOKE

Explanation of Seeming Phenomena of the "Movies."

Why Wheel, as It Revolves, Seems to Rotate Backwards—Illusion That Has Puzzled Many Is Really a Simple Matter.

Every person who has gone to the "movies" has probably noticed when there is a picture thrown on the screen which involves the rotation of a wheel having spokes, such as those on a buggy or an automobile, that as the wheel first starts to rotate it appears to revolve in unison with the rest of the picture, but as it gains speed it suddenly appears to rotate backward, rapidly at first; then it slowly stops turning, although the vehicle gains in speed. It then seems to rotate forward slowly, but not with the speed of the rest of the vehicle. The film manufacturers have not been able to eliminate this unfortunate illusion. Many explanations have been heard, but they seldom approach the right one.

The moving picture is based on the fact that the retina of the eye retains the vision for a small fraction of a second. A moving object seen on the screen in reality is a series of pictures projected with such rapidity that the retina of the eye still has the vision of one projection when the next appears. Thus the picture appears to move. In the case of a revolving wheel the eye follows the spokes. To make the explanation as simple as possible the top spoke will be considered, and its subsequent positions and phenomena analyzed.

When the wheel starts to rotate to the right, as shown in the diagram, the top spoke in the picture will be in position No. 1.

If the second picture shows the spoke in position No. 2 the wheel will appear to be rotating in unison with the rest of the picture. If, however, the wheel is rotating rapidly enough so that the second picture shows the top spoke in position No. 4 it will appear to the eye that the next spoke, which was in position No. 5 in the first picture, has moved back to position No. 4, and the wheel appears to be rotating backward.

When the wheel rotates so fast that the camera catches the second position of the first spoke in the first position of the second spoke, the wheel will show no rotation at all, though the vehicle still moves.

When the wheel rotates so fast that the second position of the top spoke will appear in position No. 6, the wheel will appear to have rotated from positions Nos. 5 to 6. This appears as a slow forward rotation.

When the wheel rotates so that the second position of the top spoke is in position No. 3, the wheel will appear to be rotating forward in unison with the rest of the picture, or it may appear to be rotating backward.

The fact that the illusion springs from the very fundamental phenomena of all "movie" work, explains why manufacturers have been unable to eliminate it. Probably, for that matter, they will be unable to eliminate it in the future, so the perverse wheels seem determined to stay with us so long as we have movies.—From the Illustrated World.

"Hungry Sam" Has Retired.

"Hungry Sam" Miller, who for years has been the terror of those in charge of church suppers, and who became famous throughout this part of the state for his gastronomic feats, has announced his retirement from heavy eating, says a Bloomberg (Pa.) dispatch to the Philadelphia North American.

In his own words: "It don't agree with me no more to eat 144 fried eggs at once."

When "Hungry Sam" appeared at any supper where "all you could eat" was served, those in charge gave up hope of making the affair a financial success, for he liked to eat until everything in the place was cleaned up.

Miraculous Recovery.

Several months ago a Belgian was struck by a dart dropped from a German aeroplane. It went right through his head vertically and between the two sides of his jaw, coming out under the chin. It was a clean cut. The man was treated in a London hospital and recovered. He is in London today, perfectly well, and has had no symptoms except once a slight fit.

DOWNFALL OF THE MIGHTY

Lawyer's Description of Misfortune That Would Move Even Hardest Hearted to Tears.

"When this suit was commenced," said a counselor of the Nevada bar, "the Silver Mining company was a great corporation. Its stock sold on the San Francisco stock board for $300 a share, with dividends of $10 a month. In its mansion its directors had champagne and terrapin dinners every Saturday night, and, after dinner, through the moonlight midnight, and until the hush of the Sabbath morn, they played draw poker, with blue chips, and the ceiling for a limit. They had a United States senator and an ex-United States district judge for the company lawyers, and the stockholders walked along, snuffing the stars.

"Now, gentlemen of the jury, how are the mighty fallen, tempora mutantur, nos et mutamur in illis, which may be liberally translated: 'Formerly a lordly race horse, now a wood-packing jackass.' The stock has fallen to $6 a share, and there has been no dividend declared since the dawn of creation. The menu of the directors' dinner is pork and beans and sour beer. They play poker with white chips with bets limited to ten cents with every player squealing for a sight all the time. They have struck hot water and desert sand in the mine, and come down to this jack-legged, cock-eyed, ragged-breeched spawn of the devil for a lawyer."—Case and Comment.

Didn't Like the Decision.
One day while walking with a friend in San Francisco, a professor and his companion became involved in an argument as to which was the handsomer man of the two. Not being able to arrive at a settlement of the question, they agreed, in spirit of fun, to leave it to the decision of a Chinaman who was seen approaching them. The matter being laid before him, the Oriental considered long and carefully; then he announced in a tone of finality: "Both are worse."

Why He Uses Right Hand.
Major George W. Powell, who is notoriously left-handed, writes with his dexter hand, and is a fine penman. "Yes," said the major, "I write right-handed, and thereby hangs a tale. I was a school boy in eastern Indiana, in a school where the master was a rigid old Virginian. One day, at the writing lesson, he noticed that I was following the copy with my left hand. 'No more of that, my lad,' said the master; 'you'll write with your right hand or it will be the worse for you.' 'The next day, forgetting this threat, I was using my left hand at the writing lesson. He yanked me from my desk, drew my nankeen trousers tight, very tight, over the seat and gave me a most cruel flogging, the testimony to which I carried for many days. When my father saw these black and blue stripes on my body he started out to find that Virginian. The schoolmaster had got wind of his coming and disappeared from the neighborhood, to be seen no more. But I have from that day always written with my right hand.'—Indianapolis News.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get my medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ill, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

Miss Asline Spragia was married Monday, to Adolph Carrara of San Francisco. The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's church, San Jose, and they left immediately for San Francisco.

Chester Strickland of Callahan, Siskiyou county, arrived yesterday for a visit with relatives, the C. J. Ludwig family, and to look after his interests here. He recently purchased the Barbano ranch on Rincon avenue.

F. H. Bone and Geo. E. Merrill of the Growers Information Bureau will address the fruit growers of Campbell at an open meeting of Orchard City Grange P. O. The residence of Dr. A. B. Townsend on Los Gatos Road had a very close call from destruction by fire on Friday. Mrs. Townsend had hung a number of garments and some bedding around the kitchen fire to dry, and something caught fire. When Mrs. Townsend, who was sewing in another part of the house, smelled smoke, and hurried out, the kitchen was densely filled, all the pieces drying were burned to ashes, and woodwork and floor badly charred. By quick work on the part of herself and the husband, the flames were subdued. The kitchen will require considerable renovating and the laundry was all a complete loss.

I have sold my "chalk and water" business to Bohnett Bros., who will deliver pure milk to my customers hereafter.

Thanking you for your patronage, I bespeak for them a continuance of the same.

High School Notes

C. U. H. S. Reporter
An orchestra has been organized at the high school, and the players are practicing after school twice a week. They are studying four different pieces just now and hope to have them ready to play in public soon. Mrs. Loomis of Los Gatos is the instructor, and the personnel is as follows: Marie Page, Elsie Bever, Eric Bydekarken, and Sidney Dowton, violins; Ruth Ellison, flute; Archie Steindorf, trombone; and Gilmore Duncan and Wallace Shambaugh, cornets.

Junior Farce
The Junior Class at the high school is in the midst of preparations for the time-honored "Junior Farce". The cast has been selected and is working hard on its lines. The amateur thespians are practicing twice a week under the able direction of Miss Bessie Chris of San Jose, whom they have secured to coach the performance.

The play is "Fannie and the Servant Problem", by Jerome K. Jerome. This play was selected by the committee after long and careful deliberation. It was selected, not because it had the requisite number of characters, so that all the class could take part, but because it was the best play available that was suitable for a high school class to give.

A try-out was conducted for the selection of the cast, and thus each candidate was given an opportunity to show what he could do. The cast of characters will be announced later.

New scenery is being constructed by the manual training classes, under the direction of Mr. Arnett. The scenery will not only be more convenient to handle, but it will also be better than that used by the past classes.

Contrary to the usual custom, the play will be given for two nights, March 31, and April 1. Reserved seat tickets only will be sold, so each one who buys a ticket buys a seat, and knows just what seat he will have. Most of the high school pupils can furnish the public with tickets, and the seats can be reserved at Smith's book store.

Indications point to this farce being the best Junior Farce yet given. At any rate, everyone can be sure of seeing a good show, if he falls into line and buys a ticket to the Junior Farce.

Charles A. Hunt, as Administrator of the Estate of E. M. Hunt, deceased; Orrin Simmons, and "also all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon plaintiffs' title thereto."

Defendants.
Action brought in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the county of Santa Clara, and the complaint filed in the office of the clerk of said county of Santa Clara.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Charles A. Hunt, as Administrator of the Estate of E. M. Hunt, deceased; Orrin Simmons, and "also all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon plaintiffs' title thereto."

You are hereby directed to appear and answer the complaint in an action entitled as above brought against you in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Santa Clara, within ten days after service upon you of this summons, if served within this county, or within thirty days if served elsewhere, and you are hereby notified that unless you so appear and answer as above required the said plaintiffs will take judgment for any money or damages demanded in the complaint as arising upon contract, or will apply to the Court for any other relief demanded in the complaint.

The object of the action is to determine all adverse claims to and clouds upon plaintiffs' title to that certain real estate situate in the County of Santa Clara, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at a point on the Northernly line of Saratoga Avenue, (formerly known as McCarthyville Road), 30 feet Easterly from the Southeastly corner of the two-acre tract conveyed by E. M. Hunt, et al., to William James Thompson by deed dated September 28th, 1878, and recorded in Liber 46, of Deeds, page 291 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California, said point being "rod and 15 1/2 feet East from a stake marked "Y" standing on the North side of said road or avenue, thence Northernly and parallel to the Easterly line of said two-acre tract to the center of the Quito or Campbell Creek; thence Westerly and along the center of said creek to the Easterly boundary line of land of Kennedy; thence North 150 West to a stake marked "C4" in the center of said Quito or Campbell Creek; thence South 300 E. 3.43 chs. to an Alder tree marked "C5"; thence North 530 East to the Northwestly corner of that tract of land as described in that certain deed dated December 8th, 1888 executed by Caroline Brewer to Inez Shields and recorded in Book 114 of Deeds, page 136, Records of Santa Clara County, California; thence Southernly 361 feet, more or less along the Westerly boundary line of said land of Inez Shields to the Northernly line of Saratoga Avenue; thence Southwesterly along the Northernly line of said Saratoga Avenue to the point of beginning.

And the plaintiffs in said action seek judgment that they are the owners in fee simple of the whole of said property; that the above named defendants, and also all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the said real property adverse to plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon plaintiffs' title thereto be foreclosed and enjoined and forever restrained from asserting any right, title, estate, lien or interest in said real property, or any part thereof and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just.

GIVEN under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Santa Clara, this 2nd day of February, A. D. 1916.
